

Self Learning Solutions (SLS) is one of the fastest growing FinTech companies in Poland.

In order to improve and automate credit risk, we have established cooperation with SLS in the field of building scoring models to assess customer credit risk. We quickly established favourable conditions and scope of cooperation for us and started working with our data. The project went according to our requirements and expectations. A business analysis of the loan granting process was carried out, potential risk factors were identified and derivative variables were proposed to complement the client's risk profile. On the basis of the prepared data, SLS has developed a scoring model that evaluates the propensity of customers to pay their liabilities. It has been implemented in our system, which results in better and faster risk assessment of clients.

We will also use SLS consulting in the area of credit risk optimization, and their self-learning module allows for efficient optimization of scoring models.

We recommend SLS as a reliable business partner.
